

Croatian Medical Journal

CMJ - March 1996 (Volume 37, Number 2)

International Center for Public Health and Human Rights Founded in Split, Croatia

Željko Dujic, Zvonimir Rumboldt¹, Matko Marušic²

Department of Physiology, Split Medical School, Zagreb University School of Medicine, Split;

¹Department of Internal Medicine, University Hospital Split, Split; and ²Department of Physiology, Zagreb University School of Medicine, Zagreb, Croatia

Split Medical School (SMS), a branch college of the Zagreb University School of Medicine, is the major institution for teaching and research in medical studies in the city of Split and the whole of South Croatia. Since the establishment of the Republic of Croatia in 1991, the scope and level of academic services provided at SMS have been developing continually. The most recent achievement is the foundation of the International Center for Public Health and Human Rights in January 1996. The Center is housed in a separate building within the college campus. Logistic and financial aid of the Dutch government has enabled the Center to provide professional help to war-traumatized children from both Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina, and to develop the concept of an elective course in health and human rights. The motto, "Joinder in Split", reflects the aspirations of the Center to international collaboration.