Child car seats

Positioning of the child safety seats in the middle of the car's rear seat may halve the risk of injury in traffic accident, shows the recent study based on the data from 4790 automobile accidents involving children aged 3 years and younger.

The scientists found out that there is a 43% smaller probability that the children younger than 3 would be hurt if their seat is fastened in the middle of the rear seat a not behind the driver or front passenger seat.
